Nuremberg trials [edit]

After the end of World War II, the Nuremberg trials were conducted in 1945 and 1946 to bring Nazi war criminals to justice. The Nuremberg Charter, decreeing an International Military Tribunal (IMT), was announced on 8 August 1945 to conduct 13 trials made up of judges from the United States, Great Britain, France and the Soviet Union. Article six of the charter outlines the crimes for which Nazi officials would be tried:

1. Conspiracy to commit charges two, three, and four below
2. Crimes against peace – participation in the planning and waging of a war of aggression in violation of international treaties
3. War crimes – violations of the internationally agreed-on rules for waging war
4. Crimes against humanity – murder, extermination, enslavement, deportation and other inhumane acts committed against any civilian population, before or during the war, or persecution on political, racial, or religious grounds in execution of or in connection with any crime within the jurisdiction of the tribunal, whether or not in violation of the domestic law of the country where it was perpetrated.^[24]

Twenty-four Nazi officials were indicted for these crimes on 6 October 1945, including Hermann Goring (Speaker of the Reichstag), Rudolf Hess (Nazi Deputy Leader), Joachim von Ribbentrop (Foreign Minister), and Wilhelm Keitel (Head of The Armed Forces). Verdicts included 12 death sentences, three life imprisonments, four prison terms of 10–20 years and three acquittals. Those acquitted were Hjalmar Schacht (Economics Minister), Former Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen, and Hans Fritzsche (Head of Press and Radio).^[24]

... the people's party in Taiwan won the national elections

The political party picked to finish last—the political party the Chinese Communist Party worked hard to defeat—the political party that represented the people and democracy...

WON.

Despite the Chinese Communist interference, despite the predictions, and despite the pressure, the people's party in Taiwan won the national elections.

They did it one way and only one way:

PAPER BALLOTS.

23.5 Million Paper Ballots, no machines.

23.5 Million Paper Ballots, no internet connections.

23.5 Million Paper Ballots, no foreign interference.

23.5 Million Paper Ballots, all hand counted on Election Day.

Paper Ballots are how you win elections.

Paper Ballots are how we restore election integrity.

Paper Ballots are how we maintain our Republic.

Paper Ballots are how WE THE PEOPLE win.
