The efforts put forth by any number of people to try and bring reason to the election conspiracy theories is overwhelming, and yet here we are today getting an explanation of how our election system works, the checks and balances, the integrity of a large citizen volunteer network working under guidance to help make it work. Along comes a "self appointed, un-credentialed" investigator, with a career in drywalling, inspired by his Jesus, and not only making his claims of election fraud, but successfully drawing in our Sheriff, who gave a large amount of time to an endeavor he can't prove happened, has no authority to spend taxpayers money on, in a jurisdiction elsewhere and then applauding the efforts of this man.

Any reasonable, intelligent person would quickly size up the situation for what it is; another person sucked in by the vast network of a cult bent on drastic changes to our country, our election process, impairing any number of freedoms; through book banning, election restrictions, personal health choices etc.

The book, "Democracy in Chains" by Nancy MacLean lays out in great detail what is underway. The subtitle of this book is "THE DEEP HISTORY OF THE RADICAL RIGHT'S STEALTH PLAN FOR AMERICA", is very telling. It is about the "radical right". The key word is "radical". I dare say many Republicans have unwittingly and unknowingly gotten caught up in some facet of this plan because it is so overwhelming in scope and so benign in implementation. They wouldn't be deemed radical and yet they have been carefully led down a path of compliance and comfort. There is nothing wrong with banning books, as long as you like who is doing the banning. There is nothing wrong with working in pursuit of a national religion with help of General Michael Flynn, as long as you like the religion, note worthy is; Afghanistan has a national religion. There is nothing wrong with restricting your health choices as long as you like the choices. We don't need a bi-partisan government as long as we are aligned with the controlling party. Note, I didn't say the majority party. The Radical Right plan doesn't require the majority but merely control over election results, per Steve Bannon. This is the mindset we are falling into. We only govern ourselves successfully when we are smart enough to recognize and elect, honest leaders with pure intentions.

This drywaller, come Private Eye might be an example of that. Good people, good intentions, unwittingly following a carefully constructed script to entice and convert people to a new way of viewing our country and processes. The purpose is simple; Money, Power and Control. Over 60 years in the making, its objectives are now being realized nationwide.

A startling statistic is; 40 % of all Federal judges have experienced training and/or exposure to the Plan, this is the Control part. Education becomes the best tool we have as citizens to repel this insidious plan and this is under attack. So regardless of your political persuasion, you owe yourself and your loved ones taking the time and at least reading this book and forming your own opinion from what is revealed. As a nation, 91% of us have a high school education. Holders of Masters and Doctorate degrees numbers 30 million, so we aren't a dumb nation. But we seem easily manipulated by the slow churning of this plan because it isn't a bold, in our face type, but rather small changes "all for the good" of our nation. A relatively small number of people are determining what is good.

A final thought: Mark Twain once stated; The truth has no defense against a fool determined to believe a lie.
